

BAR COUNCIL NEWS UPDATE – FRIDAY 28 FEBRUARY 2020

Burglary prosecutions

Daily Telegraph (print and online) – Catching burglars is not a priority for the police, a senior officer has admitted, as figures show prosecutions have plummeted.

Inspector Mark Andrews, chair of Wiltshire Police Federation, said burglary teams had been closed as resources had been diverted to combat rising violence and organised gangs involved in county lines drug dealing. This meant burglary was not “one of the priorities” listed by the force, he said.

Across England, the latest figures show fewer than one in 20 burglaries (4.8 per cent) resulted in a criminal being charged in the year to September 2019/20, almost half that in 2015/16.

Amanda Pinto, QC, chair of the Bar Council, said it was “shocking” that burglary was not a priority when it often left “householders feeling anxious and unsafe in their own homes for many months.”

“We understand that police forces face rising crime, very tight budgets and few resources but, in leaving burglars free to commit crimes with impunity, it would be no wonder that people feel our justice system can no longer cope,” she said.

Justice Week

The Times (print and online), Law Gazette & PoliticsHome – Further reports on Justice Week and the results of the survey by the main three lawyer groups, highlighting the public’s lack of understanding about the law.

Justice Week, which started on Monday, will seek to engage with the public with exhibitions, podcasts and seminars, but has as its centrepiece the “big legal lesson”, a bid by campaigners to promote teaching of the rule of law in schools. About 40,000 young people in more than 440 schools are expected to participate in what one City firm describes as “the biggest public legal education event of its kind”.

About 80 per cent of the public told the survey that understanding how the law works was vital, and more than 50 per cent of 18 to 24-year-olds said that they would like more emphasis on learning about the law at school.

The research by Populous, which surveyed more than 4,000 people, “indicates a widespread anxiety about the state of our democracy and freedoms,” according to the joint forces of the Law Society, Bar Council and the Chartered Institute of Legal Executives, three bodies that represent about 170,000 practising lawyers in England and Wales.

Amanda Pinto QC, chair of the Bar Council, said: ‘Law and justice play important roles in the public’s everyday life, from defending democracy, to protecting freedoms and helping to save the planet. As this survey shows, young people clearly have an appetite for greater knowledge about how the law can help everyone play their part in society. Justice Week 2020 is about encouraging that awareness.’

Press Association, Gov.uk, Law Gazette, The News & EasternEye – The Rt Hon Suella Braverman QC MP was sworn-in on Monday at the Royal Courts of Justice as Attorney General for England and Wales.
